remodeling and renovating of the auditorium. The Home after pointing out that all could be done. She said a past president and other officers of the Rebekah Assembly of Arkansas were here for the pilgrimage.

Ed Jasper, grand master, who resides here during his term, spoke of the improvements during the past year — the remodeling of the old girls dormitory, the dormitory by the bostery, the installation of venetian blinds in most of the girls dormitory, the $25,000 nursery recently completed as the gift of San Antonio Lodge No. 11, and the plans for the remodeling of the auditorium.

Speaking of improvements at the Ennis institution for the aged, the grand master said that a four-car garage had been erected with an apartment on the second floor, and a new laundry had been installed there. He said there was $25,000 in the fund for the Ennis Home and voiced the hope that the erection of this building could be instituted within the near future.

S. Dupree spoke on "Odd Fellowship On Parade" and urged a united front for action in improvement and properly maintaining the institutions sponsored by the bostery in Corsicana and Ennis. The bank executive urged concrete action and not lip service in going forward in an aggressive movement for the betterment of the organization.

The program given by the students included songs, piano solos, dances, plays, readings, Indian dances and skits. Participants included Bobby Griggs, Doris Lockwood, Betty Pair, Lucille Curry, Louise McKay, Helen Griggs, Wilcox Pierce, Don Winkler, Charles White, Esther and Rita Vancorn and Billy Doris, Jean, Leona and Nedra, and the intermediate girls.

Among prominent officials present were: Gen. Tommy C. Wright, Dallas, department commander; Patriarchs Militant; C. M. McLaughlin, Tyler, past grand master; Mrs. Leola McLaughlin, Tyler, president; Ladies Auxiliary, Dallas; Mrs. M. J. Sherman, Sherman, Okla.; Amarillo, treasurer, Rebekah; Mrs. Evelyn Lovelace, warden, Rebekah; O. A. Benthall, Dallas, deputy grand master; J. W. Hampton, Dallas, grand secretary; Conley Lovelace, Arlington, former superintendent of the Home here; Thelma Gage, Dallas, president; I. A. P. Sherman, C. Reed, Dallas, business manager, The Odd Fellow News of Texas, past grandmaster; Willis Severe, Midland, commander, Second Brigade, Canton; and C. T. Sherman, McAllen, commander, First Brigade, Canton, and others.

Competitive Canton drills were given. Corsicana Odd Fellow, Rebekah and Canton committees assisted in the local arrangements, parking of cars and busses, selling of sandwiches, etc.

Tables were provided whereby those interested in making contributions toward the remodeling of the auditorium could be accommodated.

A number of the trustees of the grand lodge were also in attendance.

The September meeting of the board of trustees of the grand lodge and the homes will be held here on Thursday.

and was considered of some significance by diplomatic circles here. The Tass dispatch said a British ship entered Chinese waters on Aug. 17 and fired rockets on Chinese armed forces. It charged that "workers' movements" were being suppressed both in Japan and Hong Kong. Tass declared, "we are persecuting Chinese citizens in the British Crown colony. The entrance of Chinese citizens into the colony is limited, Tass added, and passengers on conveyances into the city are subjected to questioning and beating. More than 30 Chinese societies have been forbidden, Tass said.

Another Pravda article from China said there was widespread indignation in China against Americans for alleged violations of warplanes of the Chinese boundary.

The London Daily Worker's correspondent in Manchuria reported that American planes strafed Linkiang railway station on the Korean border, for 1 minute on August 27, and also Taikou. He said a baggage car, passenger coach, two locomotives and the station were damaged in the repeated strafing runs. The Chinese Communist government has protested to the United Nations that three Manchurian border villages have been attacked by American planes. The United States is investigating the charge.

ter it seems obvious the process of strengthening the American military position has only begun.

"The Korean fighting has demonstrated that we didn't have the equipment or men necessary," he said. "I don't know how many divisions we need, but I know that we need more than we have and that we need more planes, tanks and guns."

Millikin said this build-up isn't going to be accomplished without some sacrifices on the part of Americans. He said that the additions to military appropriations, expected later in the year, are going to call for stiff tax boosts.

The Higher Taxes Seen
The Colorado senator said he thinks an estimate by Senator George (D-Ga.) that congress will be asked to boost taxes by $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 next January "isn't all 'excessive'."

The increase would be in addition to the $4,500,000,000 tax hike congress is in the process of approving now. Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) told a reporter he thinks the draft law will have to be broadened to get the 3,000,000 men the president wants. Some lawmakers already are talking of raising the draft age to 18 and of drafting married men within the present top limit of 25.

Few of the lawmakers were willing to go quite as far as Senator McClellan (D-Ark.), who called in a week-end interview for all-out mobilization with an ultimate peace-or-war showdown with Russia.

McClellan said that when the United States reaches a peak in strength, it ought to give Russia the choice of joining in world disarmament or of facing war. If Russia chose the latter course, McClellan said he would favor firing the first shot.

But Admiral Louis Denfeld, former chief of naval operations, said in an address yesterday at Lenox, Mass., that "this country as a democracy could never initiate war."

Besides, Denfeld added, the present condition of U. S. defenses are such that we are "not in a position to declare war."

Unity of Labor
Labor Day finds America's two big labor factions closer together than at any time since the CIO was carved out of the AFL 15 years ago.

Unity of action, if not actual merger, already is being seen. Federations claiming around 13,000,000 members. Already they are co-operating closely in politics.

More than that, many big independent union groups outside the AFL and CIO are pledging themselves to the same general objectives.

This trend developed since last Labor Day, and concrete unity talks between AFL and CIO leaders are due next month.

In the mobilization period just ahead, the unions may have similar collective bargaining goals but different ways of attaining them. Green has said the AFL will give President Truman a "no-strike" pledge any time he asks for it.

Baby Hurricane Sweeps Florida Coastal Region

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—A baby tropical hurricane, acting more like a spoiled brat than a storm, skirted Florida's Gulf coast today with winds just strong enough to be annoying.

The squall baby was one of three tropical disturbances in the Atlantic. A churning monster with 150-mile an hour winds moved slowly northward some 1,000 miles east of Miami and a hurricane which had backtracked after bypassing Bermuda in the North Atlantic headed out to sea again.

At 8 a. m. (CST) the Gulf storm was 30 miles west of Clearwater, in the Tampa Bay area, and moving northward about 10 miles per hour.

If it sticks to its present course it will move inland in the Apalachicola Bay area, due south of Tallahassee.

Although the storm had just upset Labor Day plans throughout a greater part of the state, damage was negligible.

A survey of the Gulf coastal area between Naples and St. Petersburg showed only a few power lines down, palm fronds littering streets and a section of Lido Beach, Sarasota's swimming beach, badly battered by high waves and abnormal tides.

Chung ran all the way to the surgical hospital. They sent a patrol of South Korean guards up. A few minutes later another patrol of volunteers from the hospital was led by Capt. Homer Mihm of Los Angeles.

Back on the hill, the guerrillas drove off the three guards, went to the tent and ordered the seven Americans and one remaining Korea prisoners to stand. Then one woman shot them down with her tommy-gun, leaving the bodies sprawled in a heap, hands still bound.

They put the dead soldiers, two light machineguns and rifles in a pile to carry away. But they apparently heard the South Korean patrol coming. They fled into the hills leaving the pile of firearms behind.

A few minutes later, Captain Mihm's patrol reached the peak too. "It was the worst sight of my life," he said.

Survivors May Live
Lt. Col. Elmer Fugitt of Washington, D. C., commander of the 8603 mobile surgical hospital, said both survivors would live.

Bodies of the victims were brought down today from the mountain top where the massacre took place.

Their arms were twisted behind them and frozen there in death. The skin was torn where tight cords held them. The bodies were riddled with bullets.

A sergeant from their unit burst into tears when he saw the bodies. "The Red bastards," he cried. "They murdered them. Damn them! Damn them!"

after smashing back new Red attacks Monday morning west of Masan. The Reds are reported to have lost 12,000 troops in this sector in three days. American forces mopped up scattered bands of Communists far behind the front line.

A U. S. cruiser slipped into coastal waters and joined two destroyers in pounding Red forces on the southern front.

In the Tongyeong area 25 miles south of Masan, South Korean Marines and naval units and Allied planes smashed several Communist attacks. A South Korean Navy spokesman said several hundred Red were wiped out.

South Korean Naval units bombarded Reds who attempted to land Sunday in Pukman Bay northwest of Tongyeong.

On the northeastern front, Correspondent Price said the two-pronged Red Korean thrust south of Kigye put the Reds in a position to whirl westward against Taegu and eastward to cut off Pohang port.

Road Bombarded.
Price said the Reds were bombarding the vital Pohang-Kyongju road with mortar and point-blank fire. The latter presumably was from tanks.

The Red drive was made in a sector where Americans have thrown the new 47 1/2-ton Patton tanks with 90-millimeter guns into the battle. The U. S. 24th division, first in Korea, has joined South Korean forces defending this sector.

Field reports to U. S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea said tank-supported American troops Monday afternoon drove back to the Angang, highway town nine miles southwest of the east coast port of Pohang.

Confused fighting swirled through the area. Fragmentary reports said a tank battle raged around the town. The Americans lost three tanks during the fight.

An Eighth Army spokesman said Angang Monday night was a no-man's land. He said the town was less important than the road junction to the west, on the Pohang-Taegu artery. United Nations forces still hold the road hub, he said.

There were no later reports on the Red units that knifed deep inside the Allied lines toward Kyongju. American staff officers said the Red spearhead was in force of at least two battalions—about 1,600 men.

The battle roared on in mud and slime left by torrential rains which partially halted most action Sunday night. Rain, wind and lightning whipped the battlefield. But the weather had cleared enough Monday so that Allied aircraft roared back in close support of ground forces.

AP Correspondent Don Whitehead, in a frontline dispatch, said the new Red offensive "is beginning to look like the last frantic struggles of a man who is doomed to die."

on your country by resigning" and said further:

"I am informed by reliable officials and newspaper correspondents that you contributed to no small way to the persecution of Mr. Forrestal. I understand you gathered and relayed gossip and information critical of Mr. Forrestal, and, in effect, forced his resignation."

Congressional critics of Johnson had previously centered their fire on his economy cutbacks and the condition of the armed forces at the outbreak of the Korean war.

But the claim that Johnson aided "persecution" of Forrestal and forced his resignation was without precedent.

Tauriello's letter also implied that only patriotism kept Gen. Omar Bradley from stepping out as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff due to attempts by Johnson "to dominate and dictate" to the military strategy planners.

Tauriello also charged Johnson with "intrigue against the State Department" causing confusion at home and abroad. He said the stockpiling of critical war materials was hampered because of conflicts between Johnson and the National Security Resources board.

Before taking his present post Johnson for a national commander of the American Legion and an assistant secretary of war. When World War II began, Henry L. Stimson, a Republican, was named as new secretary of war instead of Johnson getting the job. Johnson then resumed private law practice but remained active in Democratic national politics.

A week ago Rep. Tauriello wrote Johnson that he had "lost the confidence of the American people" and should resign.

Johnson replied that he had no intention of quitting and such suggestions ought to be forwarded to President Truman. A day later Mr. Truman told a news conference he wants Johnson to stay in the cabinet.

U. S. Must Become Strongest Power, Senator Declares

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Senator Kerr (D-Okla.) said today that the nation must swiftly make itself the world's strongest military power as insurance for peace.

He backed up President Truman's call for doubling the size of American armed forces, now around 1,500,000 men, and for a vast increase in guns, tanks and other military equipment.

Bluntly condemning Russia as an aggressor and treaty violator who has attempted to sabotage the United Nations, Kerr said in an address prepared for the annual convention of the Oklahoma American Legion: "We now know that if there is to be world peace, we and we alone have the power and the might and the confidence of others to lead the free people of the world into achieving that peace."

Kerr chided critics of the administration's pre-Korean war policies, saying: "I believe our country will be better served by determination to make her stronger today and tomorrow than by merely being critical as to any element of her weakness yesterday."

Kerr said he had no desire to "shield any one who should be censured," nor was he giving blanket approval to all officials, but he added "our first job is to work and build and prepare until we are impregnable."

Kerr said in supporting the fight against the Communist invasion of South Korea that "we had to stand up for the peace of the world and the security of our own firesides or back down in abject flight."

Pope Calls For Resistance Of Red Doctrines

PASSAU, Germany, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Pope Pius XII called on the world's Roman Catholics yesterday to fight Communist doctrine in the same way the early Christians battled heresies.

In a message to German Catholics at their 74th annual congress the pontiff called on the faithful everywhere to "build a dam" against the red-propagated doctrine of dialectical materialism.

Dialectical Materialism is the critical examination of the logical consequences of the belief that life holds only material values.

The papal message was read on the last day of the three-day congress attended by an estimated 120,000 German and Austrian Catholics.

It was apparent that the pope's call to combat materialism was directed chiefly to the 4,000,000 Catholics in East Germany, as well as the many millions in the United States, where the doctrine of dialectical materialism is involved in open controversy with the Communist-controlled government, which promotes materialism in the schools and youth organizations.

God May Approve Mercy-Killings, Bishop Declares

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Birmingham's outspoken Bishop of England bishop questioned last night whether God "under all circumstances" would disapprove of mercy killings of "lame, dumb, blind, and idiotic" human beings.

The bishop, Dr. E. W. Barnes, said he could "give no confident answer" to the question, but added: "It is human life always sacred, whatever its qualities or circumstances."

The bishop, who previously has urged sterilization of the unfit and birth control as a national policy, was speaking to a meeting of the British Association for Advancement of Science.

He blamed over-population as a principal cause of world unrest and said the old command "be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth" could be deemed divine so long as the world needed more human beings.

"This primitive need has passed. Now the world needs more good human stock, but inferior stocks are increasing far too rapidly and are a menace to the future," Dr. Barnes declared.

"Social needs, and will increasingly need, to prevent increase of degenerate human stock. Any action taken must both be kind to the individual and also tend to the ultimate welfare of mankind."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Lana Turner Is Back In Sweaters In Latest Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD Sept. 4.—(AP)—They finally got Lana Turner back in a sweater.

It took a bit of doing, but Lana is wearing a couple of sweaters (one at a time) in "Mr. Imperium" with Elio Pinza. This may not sound earth-shaking at first, but you must remember that Lana provided the biggest boost to the sweater industry since the development of cashmere.

"There's nothing wrong with a girl in a sweater," she said on the movie set. She was wearing one and I agreed with her.

"But I got sick and tired of that 'Sweater Girl' tag that they pinned on me. I think it's the same with anyone who gets a handle like that. I'm sure Annie Sheridan feels the same way about being called 'The Oomph Girl'."

Recalls First Sweater.

"After 12 years, I think I've been able to shake the title."

I asked Lana how the whole thing started.

"It was on my first picture, 'They Won't Forget,' she recalled. I had one scene in which I was walking down a street. I was young and didn't know what was going on. I thought I was acting a dramatic scene, but it happened that when I wore a sweater with very thin wool."

"After the picture was finished, Mervyn Leroy (the director) showed me every scene except the one where I was walking down the street. Finally I got him to show it to me and I was mortified. I wanted to quit and give up the movies."

The scene stayed in the picture and Lana stayed in the movies. Then the barrage began. She became known around the world as the "Sweater Girl."

"I got so sick of it that I wouldn't put on a sweater," she said. "I did everything I could to stop the publicity. I think I finally won."

Not Permanent Retirement.

Lana is trying to finish the picture as fast as possible so she can retire to await her second child. He that emphasized this is not a permanent retirement, as one broadcaster reported.

The report was completely false, she told me. "It was very embarrassing to me when I have a year and a half to go under my MGM contract. As a matter of fact, we are now negotiating a new contract."

"From now on," she added, "I am not going to take these false reports lying down. I am going to answer them with the truth. I've been taking it long enough."

Capsule Review: "Three Secrets" is almost as good as "A Letter to Three Wives," which it closely resembles. It concerns three women who gather at the mountain rescue of a boy, lost in a plane crash that kills his foster parents. Each woman thinks he is her son, since each gave a boy for adoption at the same time and place. The film's quality is not as even as "Three Wives," but the plot and snappy dialog sustain interest throughout. Eleanor Parker, Patricia Neal and Ruth Roman are all excellent with Miss Neal pulling slightly ahead for top honors.

Violations Of Labor Statutes Bring Warning

Apparently fearing an acute labor shortage in the future, several local firms have unintentionally violated state and federal wage and labor laws, according to W. B. Reedy of the Texas employment Commission.

Reedy said cases of violations have been called to the attention of his office.

He pointed out "the TEC does not administer the wage and labor laws, nor do we investigate violations in any way. Our prime interest is to aid both employer and employee. Our office will assist any employer in obtaining the information he needs to clarify an employment situation."

In order to avoid infractions of wage and labor laws, Reedy suggested employers pay close attention to the following:

Industries which employ persons under 18 should first ascertain if the job available is on the approved list of the child labor law, and then, according to 18.

Employers who have doubts as to whether or not they come under the wage and hour law should investigate.

Employers should check the laws regarding the hiring of children under 15.

Reedy pointed out that youths under 18 may work but eight hours a day and no more than 40 hours in one week. Also that they may not be employed between the hours of 10 p. m. and 5 a. m.

Child regulations during school hours are more rigid, he added.

The TEC director said cotton picking comes under this regulation and added no one under 14 could pick cotton.

On property owned by the picker or his parents, or anywhere but in the child's own school district where school was not in session.

Employers should be certain of an employee's age for jobs in the 18 and over brackets.

Employers who hire women should acquaint themselves with laws governing the hiring of females. Reedy said no woman could work more than nine hours in one day nor more than 54 hours in one week.

The director said it was important that employers find out the facts of the wage and labor laws because ignorance of the regulations will result in a violation from law suits or penalties.

"Employers who have doubts about any phases of the wage and labor regulations may apply to the TEC office for assistance and we'll direct them to the proper department for clarification," Reedy said.

Needy Aged, Blind Find Checks Cut

AUSTIN, Sept. 2.—(P)—Texas' needy aged and blind will find their September state-aid checks a dollar under the amount they are authorized to receive.

That represents a 50-cent cut from what they got last month. The average check will be $33.19 for old folks and $37.60 for the blind.

And checks to families with dependent children will be 16 percent under the authorized amount.

That means an average payment of $42.85 per family, 85 cents less than the August average.

The reason for the reduction is simple: Too many needy people and too little money to pay them.

The Public Welfare Department's executive director, John H. Winter, explained.

He voiced his hopeful note for the needy aged and blind. Expected social security payments by the federal government will go into effect at the end of this month. That should follow the state checks to people who receive them.

Both sources, leaving more money for persons who rely entirely on state help.

The number of old age people receiving state checks increased $12 to a total of 227,863 at the end of August. The needy blind rolls expanded by 60, reaching 6,599.

There were 5,530 needy families, representing 54,845 dependent children.

Old age payments totaled $7,562,829; blind, $248,111; dependent children, $836,946.

HOMECOMING and BARBECUE AT 4 P. M. Sept. 9th

Followed by Another Big Rodeo!

MARTHA JEAN ALLEN WEDS JAMES A. FULLER, JR., IN CHURCH RITES SUNDAY P. M.

In an impressive ceremony at Westminster Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, rings and vows were exchanged by Miss Martha Jean Allen, daughter of Mrs. E. P. Allen and the late Mr. Allen, and James A. Fuller, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fuller of Conroe.

Dr. Matthew H. Arnold read the double-ring rite before an altar arrangement of palms against which were silhouetted massive urns of white gladioli and asters, and glowing white cathedral tapers in gold floor candleabra.

Miss Margaret Pannill was at the organ for a prelude of romantic melodies and the traditional wedding marches. She also provided accompaniments for Mrs. J. A. Fuller who sang "I Love Thee" by Grieg and "Because" by d'Hardelot.

Given in Marriage By Brother. The bride, given in marriage by her father, Howard Allen, wore a gown of imported white Chantilly lace over white tulle, which was designed with a sleeveless fitted bodice and a bouffant skirt of ankle-length. A cut-out design of the lace outlined the modified V-neckline. She wore mittens created of the chosen lace and opera pumps of white satin. Her shoulder-length veil of misty bridal illusion fell from a form-fitting cap of Chantilly lace which was accented with clusters of periwinkle orange blossoms and peach blossoms. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, and she carried an heirloom lace handkerchief that had been carried by her mother in her wedding.

The bride's bouquet was fashioned of stephanotis, centered with an orchid and showered with lilies of the valley and love knots of white satin ribbon.

Miss Frances Wallace, who served as the maid of honor, wore a blue Chantilly lace fashioned with a molded bodice, scalloped neckline and bouffant skirt. Opera pumps and a sash of navy velvet, gave effective accent. She carried a fan-shaped arrangement of pink angel lilies and asters tied with matching satin ribbon, and a halo of pink net and pink spilt carnations completed her ensemble.

Jo Linnda Allen, niece of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid. She was attired in rose taffeta styled with scalloped neckline and a sash of self material. She carried a miniature fan-shaped arrangement of pink angel lilies and asters, and wore a halo of pink carnations and net.

Bobby F. de Conroe served as best man, and the ushers were James Allen of New Braunfels and Lewis Allen of Dallas, brothers of the bride. Dickie Allen of Tyler, nephew of the bride, and Robert E. Stagner of Van James and Dickie Allen also served as candle-lighters.

Dr. H. H. mother wore navy crepe with gray and pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Reception Follows Ceremony

An informal reception was held at the home of the bride's mother immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table, laid in white lace and organza cloth, was centered with a profusion of pink angel lilies and white asters in a crystal bowl. A reflector, garlanded with feathery fern, held the white, satin-caked cake of doubling contour which was embossed with sugar-sprink leaves. Miss Marianne Long presided at the cake. Miss Pansy Ware served frosted punch and Miss Carolyn Rhodes of Van had charge of the bride's book.

When the couple left for a wedding trip, the bride was wearing a tulle and organza gown, accented with dark brown blouse, bag shoes, mauve hat and gloves, and an orchid corsage.

The bride was graduated from Corsicana High school and Navarro Junior College, and attended Southern Methodist University.

The bridegroom was graduated from Conroe High school and Navarro Junior College, where he served as president of the student body for the 1949-50 term and was a member of the Bulldogs football team of the College.

Miss Ann Blakeney brought interesting facts on her recent trip to Japan when she appeared as the featured speaker at the covered dish luncheon of the Mary-Marie Class of First Baptist Church on Thursday.

After describing her boat trip, and arrival in Japan, the speaker described the country, the towns, the homes, the people and their many shrines, and told of sight-seeing in Tokyo. Adding much to the effectiveness of the traveling was the colorful Japanese kimono, in which she was attired. Miss Blakeney is the daughter of Mrs. T. A. Blakeney, teacher of the Mary-Marie Class.

As a prelude to the discussion of Japan, Mrs. Wade Smith, program chairman, presented Mrs. C. A. Hanna in a vocal rendition of "Japan, Land of the Rising Sun." In addition to the program participants, the visitors were Mrs. J. A. Battle, Mrs. E. M. Caskey, Mrs. W. S. Anglin, Miss Jane Smith and Miss Dozie.
